“If you hear a voice within you say ‘you cannot paint,’ then by all means paint, and that voice will be silenced.” - Vincent Van Gogh

Oh! So that’s how Van Gogh produced his timeless masterpiece ‘The Starry Night’. I suppose one has to be radical in order to be an artist. In our newsletter today we have two such artists who aren’t letting that tiny mischievous voice in their head stop them from doing what they want. Enjoy the unique and original works by Klaus and Bidisha.

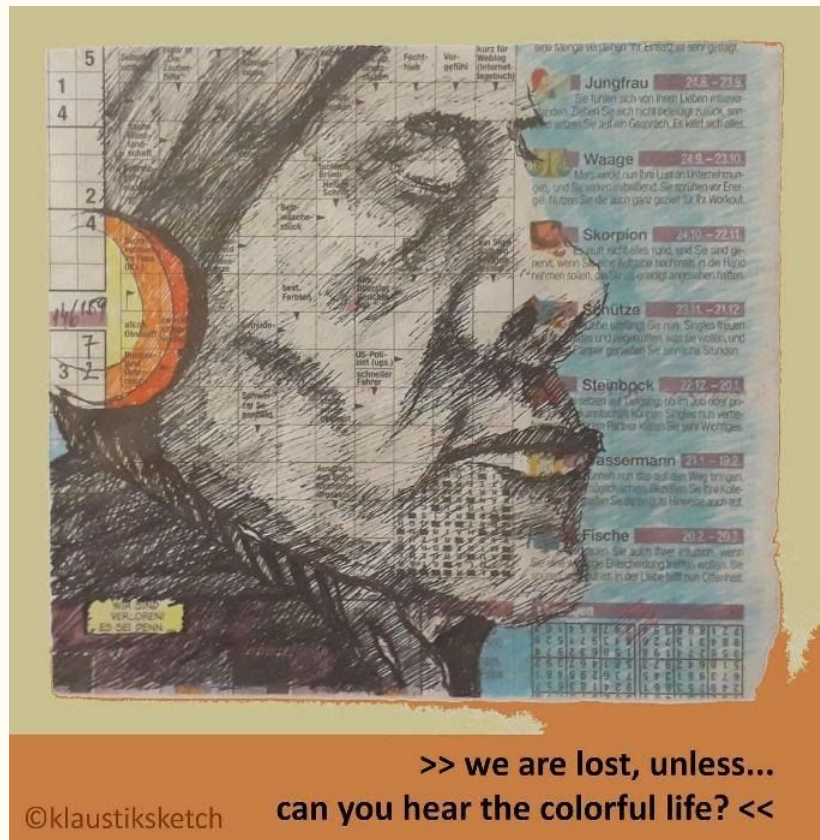

Follow them on social media, show some love and help them grow!

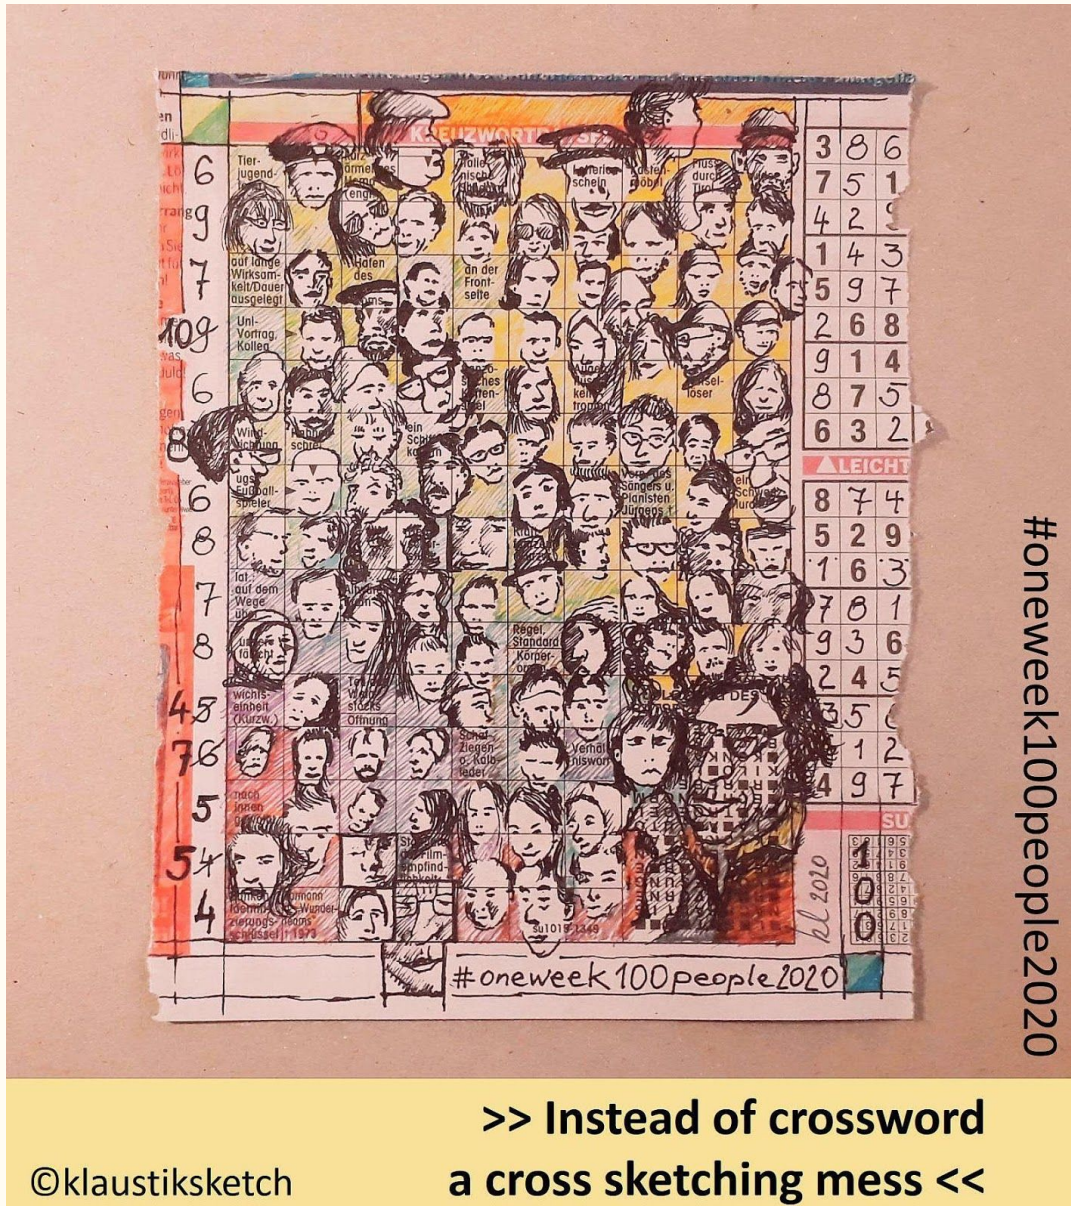

Quite Literally, Out of the Box

Featured Artist - Klaus

Words from the artist

Using the crossword section of the daily free newspaper collected at the station, picking up some crossword solutions as an inspiration and other commuters sitting around as models, my daily sketch is dependent on how long the models are in the same place and getting off the train myself. Therefore, I add colors and finish the sketch often far away from realistic illustration much more in some sort of cartoon style, using the picked up words to build my captions. My aim is to tell a little story and offer a starting point for my own thoughts and stories.

About the artist:

Klaus 'klaustik' is based in a small town south of Austria's capital Vienna. For work as a digital cartographer and geospatial analyst he commutes workdays 40 minutes in each direction, using this spare time especially for his commuter sketches published on social media accounts. For more of his sketches follow him on Instagram @klaustiksketchi.

THAT'S ALL FOR THE FIRST ISSUE OF
